

Forklift driver 'snags' barbecue prize

READERS were given the opportunity recently to "steak their claim" on a special barbecue giveaway.

A dedicated Land for Sale feature profiled some of the state's most popular land developments and reached about 869,000 Queensland readers.

The prize, a Beef-Eater four-burner stainless steel barbecue package worth more than $2200, was drawn earlier this month.

When forklift driver Michael Garnett learned he was the winner, he said he had been thinking about trading in his old barbie.

Michael said he was on the lookout for a new barbecue and couldn't be happier with his unexpected win.

"My barbecue was getting a bit old and I was starting to think about buying a new one for our new place," Michael said. "I guess it was just pure luck that we won."

He said his family would get a lot of use out of the new barbecue.

The Garnett family was visiting Greater Flagstone, on Flagstone Creek Estate, a rural residential development near Beaudesert which, under its existing planning approval, has potential for about 3000 residential lots.

Knight Frank Queensland land sales manager Michael Rozic that sales in the recent Flagstone Creek Estate release of stage 11C had exceeded expectations, with the fully serviced half-acre lots proving to be very popular.

"From the original 47 lots released in stage 11C, all half-acre lots have now been sold and there are only five one-acre lots remaining for sale," Mr Rozic said.

"These one-acre lots are the last to be developed at Flagstone Creek Estate with prices starting from $144,500, so now is the time to secure your acreage home site."

Mr Rozic said Knight Frank was looking to release stage 10E within the next three to four weeks.

"The enquiry level has been very high and is expected to continue with the latest release," he said.

The Courier-Mail, together with Aussie BBQs and Beef-Eater, offered the barbecue prize. To enter the draw readers simply had to visit one of the advertised sales offices on the weekend of May 27-28.
